

The Federal Communications Commission

Dear The Federal Communications Commission,

I am Soldier. Please wait to raise my wireless phone plan until after I redeploy from Iraq. It is the number one way I contact my wife and kids. Before I go out on missions or ride in a convoy, I try to call home. With my wifes busy schedule, I always try her cell phone first. More times than not it was the right decision. I can barley afford the cell phone and any increase would force me to cancel my cellphone thus losing contact with my wife and kids. This is what most of us Soldiers rely on. Don't take that away.

Sincerely,

William Stratton
